

Ready to Use Newsletter Article: Using ABCmouse.com at Home

Feel free to use gather screen grabs or other images similar to the ones in this article. Contact us if you would like images provided to you.

Sample Headline: Tips for using ABCmouse.com at Home

Did you know that your child can use ABCmouse.com at home to reinforce what they're learning in the classroom? As an enrolled student, your child can access games, lessons and activities that are educator-designed to boost important skills needed for kindergarten and beyond. You can redeem your code here.

ABCMouse.com is a child-safe online learning program that your child can access from a computer, tablet or smartphone, making it a great choice for busy families! Here are a few examples of how to use ABCmouse.com at home.

1. Encourage your child to play one of the many readalong books available on ABCmouse.com while preparing dinner. Listen in and ask questions about the story to encourage comprehension skills while you're chopping veggies.

2. Rhyming words are an important tool for building literacy skills. Start a rhyming book or game on ABCmouse.com as you're preparing to get in the car, and continue the learning while running errands. Look for words that rhyme along with your child in the store, at the bank or on your drive.

3. In the math section of ABCmouse.com, your child can do a variety of activities to practice numbers 1-100. Choose a number to find games, art projects and books focused on that number. Then, count items around the house or look for the number in a catalog.